The only ocean basin on Earth that does not Storm from the South see tropical cyclones develop is the South Atlantic, but it had a rare tropical storm form on Sunday. It also emphasizes the importance of the equatorward generation region over South America and of the genesis regions in the Atlantic and Indian Oceans. The latter raises again the notion that there may be a positive feedback between the storm track and the SST gradients: the storm track leads to surface winds that drive the currents that lead to SST gradients, and these may be favorable for the storm track.
