Wake up and it's still with you. During sleep, a remarkable sewage system in the brain, called the glymphatic system, kicks into high gear. It is worth noting evidence from scientific studies showing that after 22 hours without sleep, human performance is impaired to the same level as that of someone who is legally drunk.

Results come and go. Verificadapor Luca Zanollicurador. However, I cannot recall any government launching a national public health campaign centred on the essential importance of sleep as both disease prevention and treatment. It's so common, in fact, that it's almost expected.
